At Yule Time

It's now the time for Christmas trees, mistletoe and holly, sleigh bells ringing o'er the breeze, and everybody jolly, the children all will eat their fill of turkey, sauce, and candy, and Mother will be sure to have the paregoric handy; relatives and friends will come to pay their annual visit and swear by all the saluts above that everything's exquisite; gifts to make to every one, and that's the very reason I save the ones they give to me; then give them back next season.

Railroading is something fine, You start out of Earlinton on the big high nine. When you get over Barnsley You think you're flying. But You fill out at Mortons with a full coal train. No matter how hard it snows nor how hard it rains, You get fifteen hundred tons just the same. You dig out for Nashville as hard as you can, But when you roll up to Latham a red board again, You pick up four cars to fill the train, That's how they railroad on the south end.

We roll into Guthrie at four o'clock The two rear cars were burning hot, I cut off the remainder set out four, Backed down five and picked up forty more.

We headed up the lead to the main at last, The car pecks by them had the two rear ones braced, I coupled the air and looked the train over By then we had orders and ready to go.

We pulled out of Guthrie, four hours late, I was tired and sleepy and it was getting late.

Fireman Carlton says Brakeman help me shake this grate, For if I don't remove this clinker, We will be over taken by the Apes.

Hitchcock Premits Red Cross Seals On Mail

Washington, Dec. 14.—Postmaster General Hitchcock today suspended until January 1 the postal regulation forbidding the transmission through the mails of matter bearing upon the address side Red Cross Christmas seals or other charity stamps.

Picking Out the Christmas Tree. "Jimmy, how I wish that was to be our Christmas tree! Only it wouldn't hold the sled and the bull pup that I want Santy to bring me. Guess we'd better wish for that bigger one, sis, so's the pony you asked for can be put on it, too. My, but won't it look bully when it's all crowded with candles and candy-bags and popcorn, with little angels bobbing at the ends of the branches? 'Course they ain't any of them strong enough to hold all the things we want, but maybe they'll hold all we'll get."

PREJUDICE By O. G. W.

Be not the first to let the word of blame Fall from thy lips 'gainst one thou cannot help, Lest some one, hearing thee, may hardened grow T'ward one, perchance, he doth not even know. Our lightest breath the polish'd glass doth mar On which we breathe, scarce knowing why or when, So is it in our daily life with men. The little word, where silence had been blest; The idle laugh; perchance the thoughtless jest. May prejudice the mind of one who hears, Scarce knowing why he listens. We should be Helpers, not hinderers, on life's tempestuous sea. We cannot bear our weary brother's load, But we can make it lighter by our cheer. Then every idle word which we may hear Let us not cherish 'gainst the friend in need. But let us prove a friend indeed.

When your feet are wet and cold, and your body chilled through and through from exposure, take a big dose of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, bathe your feet in hot water before going to bed, and you are almost certain to ward off a severe cold. For sale by all dealers.

AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION SHORT COURSES IN AGRICULTURE

Lexington, Ky. Dec. 4.—On the Second day of January, 1912 the College of Agriculture of the State University will begin its farmers' courses or short courses in agriculture. The first week of this time will be designated Farmers' Week. The time will be consumed by the annual conventions of the various live stock breeders' associations, including the dairy and beef cattle, swine, sheep and horses, the annual meeting of the State Horticultural Society and the State Corn Growers' Association. Each of these associations will devote one day to their programs, some of the conventions running simultaneously in different rooms.

This week affords the best possible opportunity, not only to hear an interesting and instructive program by practical and professional men of State and nation-wide reputation, but also an opportunity to meet a large majority of the most successful farmers and stockmen of our State. Not only will the farmer find that the week spent at the college pleasant and profitable, but also his wife and daughter will find that special arrangements have been made for them in the way of instructions in household economics. Lectures, demonstrations and practical exercises in cooking, sewing, home decoration and other matters pertaining to the home will be treated.

During Farmers' Week the State Corn Show will be held, with a large number of classes for both the adult and boys' departments, and a most attractive premium list is offered. At the same time there will be held the State Dairy Show, with exhibits of milk and cream of both certified and market classes, and butter made at the creamery and on the farm, each in its class. A separate premium list will be offered for the various classes, making it well worth while to compete in any of them. The State Horticultural Society is also arranging for an elaborate exhibit. Special folders giving information concerning each of these departments will be mailed to any one on request.

Reduced rates have been secured over all the railroad lines to put it within the means of a larger number to attend.

Immediately following Farmers' Week will come the regular Winter Short Course in Agriculture, intended for the practical farmer who cannot leave his farm to take any of the regular college courses. This course continues until the middle of March, treating practical farm problems and operations in a scientific manner. The time was selected during the winter in order that it might be possible for the farmer to leave his work, which would not be the case if it were conducted in the summer.

The facilities for teaching are perhaps as good at the Kentucky Agricultural College as at any other place in the country, especially in the case of live stock and dairying. Among the subjects treated will be agronomy, or general field crops, animal husbandry, diseases of live stock, farm dairying and dairy management, farm and home sanitation, including dairy bacteriology, botany; horticulture in its various phases, economic entomology or the study of injurious and beneficial insects, road construction and maintenance, farm law, weather forecasting and farm accounts.

No pains or money have been spared to make the week pleasant and profitable to the farmer. A special booklet describing the short courses in detail has been printed and will be sent on application. All is absolutely free.

Pork Favorite Chinese Food.

The Chinese eat little or no beef. The beef consumed in the empire is chiefly the food of foreigners. But the natives are exceedingly fond of pork and consume vast quantities of it. Not only is the native article an excellent grade, but Chinese pork is retailed at a price far lower than the mere cost of production in this country. American pork could not compete with that of China, even if there were no question of transportation.

HISTORY OF RED CROSS SEALS

RED CROSS Christmas Seals date back in their origin to 'charity stamps, first used for the soldiers' relief funds in Boston in 1862, during the Civil War. After the war, this method of raising money was discontinued in this country for a generation, although its found in Portugal, Switzerland, Austria, France, Spain, Denmark, Norway, Russia, Sweden and other European countries. There are now several hundred different types of charity stamps used in all parts of the world as many as forty being used in Austria for children's hospitals alone. Stamps or seals were first used to get money for the anti-Tuberculosis crusade in Norway and Sweden in 1904. After being used in these countries for three years, as a direct result of the interest of Jacob Rills in this movement, the Delaware Anti-Tuberculosis Association, headed by Miss Emily P. Bissell, and the Red Cross Society of Delaware, combined in issuing a Tuberculosis Stamp. So successful was this campaign that nearly $3,000 was realized, and the next year, in 1908 the American Red Cross was induced to issue a National Red Cross Tuberculosis Stamp. From this sale, $135,000 was realized, that amount being almost doubled in 1909. Last year, for the first time, the sale was organized on a comprehensive basis, taking in all parts of the United States, $310,000 worth were sold. In 1911, the slogan for the campaign, 'A Million for Tuberculosis from Red Cross Seals. These stamps are on sale at the St. Bernard Mining Co., Incorporated, Drug Department.

Lexington, Ky., December 11. | State University students to the number of more than 1,000 today, by a vote of more than 2 to 1, adopted a system of self-government, by which all moral affairs of the students are left in the hands of an Executive Committee of 10 student members of each class, including four girls.

If the student, male or female, is detected in dishonesty of any sort, cheating in examinations or any other act not morally clean, the offender will be tried secretly by this committee of 10. The finding, if unfavorable, will be kept secret, but the offender will be notified by letter to leave the university within a week. If the student does not leave public expulsion is the penalty.

An appeal can be made to the higher body of students as a last resort if the grounds are considered sufficient. In short, the plan is for the students to be in charge of the entire government of the university in so far as the moral attitude is concerned. The action was taken with sanction of the faculty.

Desired the Dog to Desist.

Judge Stevens had a slight hesitation in his speech, but that affliction did not prevent his using long words. One morning his dog Bulp got into a fight with another dog. Tapping him with his cane, Judge Stevens exclaimed: "D-d-d-d-is-con-t-t-t-in-u-u-u!"—Success.

Humors of the Civil War

An Irish recruit, who had enlisted up State, left New York City with his regiment by water for Norfolk. As the boat was passing Governor's Island the usual sundown gun was fired. He ask what the noise was and was told that it was sundown.

"Many's th' time Oir'se secuth' sun go down in the ould country," said he, "but niver have Oi heard it make a noise like thot."

Gloom was thick enough to cut. The Paymaster hadn't been around for months, and only one of the boys had any money. One of the down-and-outs approached him and said:

"Loan me a dollar for a week, old man."

Without looking up he grunted in reply: "What weak old man?"

"O, yes, said the pilot on a transport going up the Tennessee river, 'I have been on this river so long I know where every stump is.' Just then, with a jar, the boat stuck a stump. 'There: that's one of them now,' he continued.

Pat was sent to gently inform Mrs. McGinnity of her son's demise at Antietam. He walked past her house three or four times before he mustered up courage to tell her. Then he called her to the door and approached the subject gingerly.

"Yis: Oi was wid Tim only yistiddy. He was a grand bye, and d've moind phiu th' charge was made his new uniform was spoiled entirely, a cannon ball wint clane thru it, and Tim niver said a word, poor bye, an' we made him another one out of pine boards an' buried him with military honors."

Woman of Indianapolis Take Mayor Between Capital and Labor Strike Snag Shank at His Word

Indianapolis, Dec. 12.—Taking advantage of Mayor Lew Shank's public statement that he would like to put a woman in his office during his next absence from the city, the Equal Suffrage Association met today and nominated Dr. Hannah Graham for the honor. In speeches the women of the organization assured Mr. Shank that Dr. Graham would conduct the affairs of the city perhaps a bit more capably than the mayor himself.

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS

New York, December 11.—The collapse of the peace negotiations entered into by members of the Executive Committee of the American Federation of Labor with the employers in the building trade were the leading developments in the labor situation here today.

It had been the hope of the Federation men to propitiate the employers by calling off all strikes in this city, and to lay the foundation for the settlement of all labor disputes throughout the country.

But the negotiations encountered a snag when they were told by representatives of the employers that they would not treat with them, nor would they ever consent to take back their striking employees as union men.

Squabble Checked by no Election

Henry Youtsey, of Newport, serving a life sentence here for complicity in the murder of Gov. William Goebel, was shorn of his office as president of the Penitentiary Christian Endeavor society, and the annual election for this office has been declared off.

The rival candidates this year for this place are Youtsey, for re-election, and Curtis Jett, of Jackson, who is serving a life sentence for the murder of James B. Marcum and James Cockrell. The feeling among the convicts over the rivalry of Youtsey and Jett has been so keen that at times they have almost come to blows.

Gov. Wilson, for the third time during his administration, refused to grant Youtsey a parole. The petition was presented by Chaplain Walter Vreeland.

STAFF ON STRIKE

Editors of Joplin Mo. Tribune Denied Use of Color

The entire news department of the Joplin Mo. Tribune, with the exception of the managing editor and one reporter, refused to report for duty recently following a conference, when it was decided to walk out in a body.

S. H. Clay Waters, city editor, led the delegation. Others were James Wadleigh, telegraph editor; Charles W. House, sporting editor; Miss Rhea Lopp, society editor; and Elmer Turnidge, police reporter.

In declaring a strike members of the disaffected force declare they were handicapped by interference of employers in the paper, launched four weeks ago, in preparation of news stories. They assert they were unable to give their staff the proper color and rather than follow the course laid down to them agreed to quit.

Employees of the paper in other department say the manner in which the sporting page was conducted is at the bottom of the trouble. House, sporting editor, became aroused when certain articles were killed. The city editor remained with him, the telegraph and society editors joined in, and soon all but one reporter and the editor were ready with "20."

The one reporter remaining was placed on the city desk. Nearby cities were scoured for reporters, and two were borrowed from other papers.

The sunshine-making fairies
We loved ere we grew wise,
Don't seem to come around now—
Not even in disguise.
But whisper? (This is magic!)
They did not all depart,
For here's a fairy "ticker"
To match a broken heart.

Don't ask the why or wherefore,
Or who they are who weep,
The fairies bear the sad things
While happy people sleep.
Don't buy because you're frightened
Your own cheer may depart.
The widow's mite was mighty
Through goodness in her heart.

So when you're Christmas happy,
Remember, as you should,
Good will is more than being
Just willing to be good.
So kiss the seal and stick it
(Or else the charm will fall)—
The finger-print of fairies
On everything you mail?

NEWSPAPER MEN TO PROTEST

Publishers See Menace in Hitchcock's Proposed Law

John Harrison, of Danville, president of the Illinois Daily Press Association, has stated that Postmaster General Hitchcock intends to advocate a law that newspapers carrying more than 50 per cent of advertising be refused admission to the mails as second class matter. Resolutions of protest, it was said, will be adopted by the association before the close of its present meeting.

An appeal was made to President Taft that he extend the favored nation clause to the twenty-eight nations with which this country has treaties, allowing free importation of pulp and paper such as is provided for in the treaty with Canada.

Billy's Christmas Greeting

By EUGENIA RABBAS

Copyright, 1911

O I am a heartless flirt, who doesn't understand the meaning of the word love, am I, Mr. William Dunning?" stormed Marjorie all to herself, in answer to the final decree of rage and defiance which that gentleman hurled at her by means of a vigorous slam of the front door.

"I believe he would have shaken me, if he hadn't rushed out in time to prevent himself from doing it," she continued, the ever ready dimples venturing out of their hiding places, but she banished them severely. "I'll never, never forgive him, even though he asks me to, which of course, he won't! And he calls me stubborn!"

Next morning Marjorie was tremendously busy wrapping up dainty little parcels, for the next day was Christmas, and her many friends must be remembered, in spite of quarrels and Billy.

Still, she seemed very much preoccupied over her work, and quite suddenly she threw aside the piece of holly she had been toying with, and fairly flew to the telephone.

In answer to her impatient summons, she was quickly connected with Brown & Co.'s book store. "Have you sent out those books that were ordered for Mr. William Dunning?" she asked anxiously.

The answer evidently pleased her, for she breathed a sigh of relief. "That's all right; I'm glad you haven't, for I have changed my mind about them. Please cancel the order."

Marjorie hung up the receiver with an air of triumph. "There, I'm glad I thought of that! Billy would have construed a Christmas present into an abject apology," she said, her indignation rising at the very thought of such a thing.

But when she went back to her parcels and picked up the little twig of holly she had intended tucking away into one of them, her face softened. "I know that isn't the right kind of a Christmas spirit to have, but I can't have Billy thinking that I am admitting I was wrong, when I know I wasn't," she argued with herself.

The joyous ringing of Christmas bells and merry shouts of her younger sisters and brothers, when they discovered their stockings the next morning, only served to emphasize her depression.

"Billy never loved me; if he really and truly did he never could treat me like this," she told herself as she stood looking with unseeing eyes at the snowy Christmas world.

Just then a young man, fairly tearing around the corner, arrested her attention. It was no less a person than Billy himself who was coming, post haste, to see her.

Marjorie looked at him in wonder. What had come over Billy? Why this sudden contrition, when, she admitted it now for the first time, even to herself she had been greatly, if not altogether, to blame for their quarrel.

"O, Billy, I am so glad you came." Billy took some little time to emphasize his appreciation of her welcome, then "Glad I came? Why wouldn't I come, dear?" he asked.

"Because you vowed you wouldn't unless I apologized," Marjorie explained mischievously.

"You didn't think I'd be so narrow and unforgiving as to ignore your dear little peace offering? I brought one of the books with me to read something to you," he told her, and diving into his pocket he produced a little copy of "Romeo and Juliet."

Marjorie was surprised for a second, then it flashed over her what it all meant. Brown & Co. had forgotten to cancel her order and Billy had received the books. Billy had construed her sending them into a humble plea for forgiveness.

He most probably wouldn't have come at all if it hadn't been for that. She stiffened visibly and all her love was swallowed up in a wave of rebellious pride.

"You are mistaken," she commenced coldly, but Billy interrupted her. "Here, I have found it."

"My bounty is as boundless as the sea, My love as deep, the more I give to thee."

"The more I have, for both are infinite," he was reading, and the simple beauty of the lines awoke something in Marjorie stronger than pride or resentment and she only smiled when he added tenderly: "My Christmas greeting to you, dear."

FRENCH LICK EXPLOSION IS LAID TO McNAMARA'S

Detective Burns Exonerates an Indianapolis Man on Confession of McManigal

Indianapolis, Dec. 12.—Detective William J. Burns today cleared Henry Underwood of the blame for the explosion, which damaged the French Lick Hotel at French Lick, Ind., early in 1911, when he stated that "the job" had been charged to James B. McNamara in the confession of Ortie McManigal. Burns says the dynamiting was done by James McNamara at the instigation of John McNamara because nonunion men were employed on the building.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 11.—"There is not a particle of truth in the statement that I am going to oppose Swager Sherley for Congress from the Fifth Congressional District," said Gov. Willson today.

"And I would not even consider making such a race." The Governor continued by saying that he graduated from congressional races 19 years ago and that after his term of office expired and after a rest at Atlantic City he was going to Louisville and devote his time to the practice of law.

PICKING A PRESENT FOR PLATT

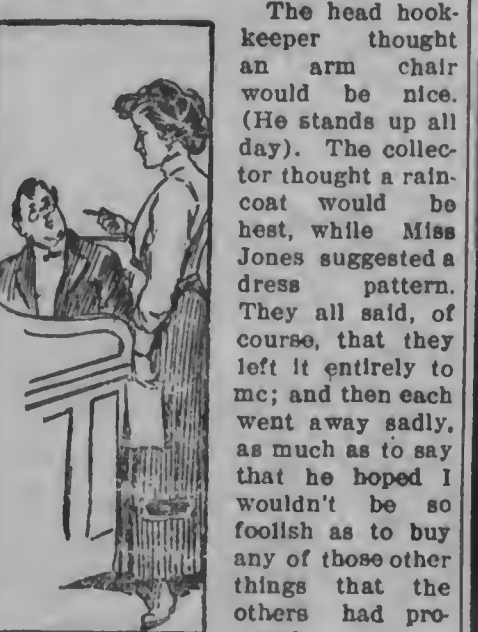

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

When Harry Platt and that girl friend of the Greeks (I forget her name) were married, it was one of those my goodness, just-think-of-that affairs, with no one in on the secret except the suburban minister who tied the knot, the cabman who drove them out there and the girl from the minister's kitchen, who was a witness, and left a thumb-print of grease on the certificate (she was frying doughnuts at the time) and the minister's wife (at least the name was the same). Let's see, where was I? Oh, yes, when the Platts were married, it being that kind of a wedding, there was no chance to send them a wedding gift as I would have liked to do, or to have done, (whichever is proper, or grammatical, though I'm sure I can never tell which). But Mr. Platt is one of the nicest men in the office, that is, he was before this happened. So I felt we ought to do something for him, just to show our good will—and, anyhow, we've dug down for others we thought much less of, so why shouldn't we for him? But the wedding was over, without invitations, or even a reception, and they were housekeeping before we knew it. So what could we do?

Well, just then Christmas came along not just then but two months after the wedding. They were married October 29, so it wasn't quite two months, but that's close enough. When Christmas came along, that is, just before it came along, I suggested that we make up a purse and give them a sort of delayed wedding present, just to show our good will. Everybody thought it was a splendid idea, that is, of course, except Mr. Platt, whom, of course, I didn't consult. So I got up a subscription paper and went to everybody in the office (except Mr. Platt, of course). I got $26.60, including ten cents from the janitor, who wasn't expected to give anything but wanted to give something, which shows just how popular Mr. Platt was with everyone in the building, when a janitor even would chip in.

Christmas shopping is hard enough, goodness knows, when you do it for yourself; but when you do it for a stock company capitalized at $26.60, with 28 stockholders, with 28 different kinds of ideas and tastes, then Christmas shopping rises above a mere annoyance to the dignity of a real trouble. And that's what I was up against. I thought it would be nice to get an expression of opinion. So I went around one morning and asked for ideas. But I couldn't get a word. Nobody could think of anything. I couldn't myself. At noon I went out and looked. I walked miles. I priced, then I went back to the office. You should have seen my desk. Honest, you would have thought some one had turned in a general alarm. They couldn't wait for me to get back. There they were—28 of them, (that is, 27, or 28 with me). They all had suggestions, and they were all different.

The head book-keeper thought an arm chair would be nice. (He stands up all day). The collector thought a raincoat would be best, while Miss Jones suggested a dress pattern. They all said, of course, that they left it entirely to me; and then each went away sadly, as much as to say that he hoped I wouldn't be so foolish as to buy any of those other things that the others had proposed.

The next day I looked again. But either a thing was too expensive or I would have money left. It is remarkable how few things there are in the world you can buy for $26.60, no more, no less.

And then I saw it. It was in a department store, and marked down from $50 to $26.60! There it was, to a cent! A great, big, glittering, magnificent Punch Bowl! Nobody had thought of that!

But, to make sure, I sent the sales ticket with it and told the Platts they could exchange the punch bowl, if they wished, for something they liked better. And what do you suppose those Platts did? In January they traded in that magnificent punch bowl for three tons of coal!

A WRECKED LOCOMOTIVE

Lies upon rocks, a shattered thing, Here where the valley flood ripped up the rails, No more the sound that on these modern trails Leaped at the whipping steam's fire-furled sting And scented toward the cities as on wing.

Unwarned, unchecked, with weld, half-human wails, As some cliff-driven beast of ancient tales

It plunged to ruin past all reckoning, And on the heap, his face unfrowned by fear,

Calm as a man of marble and as white, Gripping the throttle, lies the engineer,

Who fell to sleep on his last, frantic light; While overhead the solemn stars appear

And this thin gloaming thickens in to night. —Harry Randolph Blythe in the Transcript.

"The Mystic Eleven"

The Mystic Eleven was entertained last night by Pansy Rufe and Goldie Weir. All brought sewing, and were very busily engaged during the entire evening, owing to the fact that Xmas is so near. Dainty refreshments were served at a late hour.

Those present were; Irene Coyle, Elizabeth Kemp, Katie Murrel, Gertie O'Bannon, Kathleen Spillman, Mabel Browning, Ruth Daniel, Goldie Weir, Pansy Rufe and Mrs. Henry Coward. All departed declaring that they had had a "heap" good time.

The next meeting will be with Gertie O'Bannon.

Make the Best Use of It.

It is useless to desire more time, if you are already wasting what little you have; for you would only grow more indolent and indifferent.—White's Class Advertising.

Advantage of Advancing Years.

One of the advantages of becoming old is that one becomes indifferent to hatred, insult, and calumny, while one's capacity for friendship and good will are increased.—Bismarck.

Not Always.

It is not always safe to decide that a man has passed the age of usefulness merely because his 15-year-old son can beat him at golf.

Historic Retributions.

Haman devised a gallows 50 cubits high for Mordecai in the days of King Ahasuerus. But on this towering gibbet Haman himself was hanged. The bishop of Verdun contrived an iron cage, too small to allow a person confined within it either to stand upright or to lie at full length, for the torture of heretics. The bishop of Verdun himself was the first victim to suffer such a cage.

BAKER & HICKMAN'S STOCK REDUCTION SALE

Begins Thursday, December 14, Closes Saturday, December 23

In order to raise money to meet certain obligations and to make the second payment on our stock of goods to the Ashby estate, we have decided to reduce our stock, which is larger than ever before in the history of our store at this season, and realizing the keen competition of this city we shall make the lowest bona-fide prices ever offered in Hopkins county on new clean, seasonable merchandise,

Every article advertised in this sale is guaranteed to be just as represented. We are not trying to fool the public by advertising goods we haven't got, and remember distinctly that every price quoted, though they may seem unreasonable low, is positively made in good faith, and that we have the goods to back up this statement.

Remember while this is our first year in business, and we need the money, that this is not a forced sale, and that we are not going out of business, and that we do not wish to deceive the public and make a false impression by so intimating, but is simply the means we have chosen to raise a certain amount of money within a certain time.
